Sir James Gallacher seconded the motion, which was adopted.

The Lord Mayor proposed a resolution tendering the sympathy of the Corporation to the relatives of the late Councillor James, ex-High Sheriff, to whom he paid a high tribute for the way in which he looked after the interests of the waifs and strays of the city.

Sir Patrick Shortall, seconding, mentioned that the annual excursion given by the late Councillor James to city newsboys would be continued, as money had been invested by Councillor James for that purpose.

The resolution was adopted.

The condolence of the Council was also expressed in reference to the death of Mr. Goo. Perry, once a member of the Council.

CO-OPTION OF MEMBER.

CO-OPTION OF MEMBER.

Alderman Delahunt moved that Mr. John Douglas, 18 Upper Ormond quay, be co-opted as representative of the Royal Exchange Ward, in room of Mr. Cogan, resigned.

Mr. Delahey seconded.

The Town Clerk said that there was a cor-and the Local Government Board on this subject.

Mr. Reigh said the Council had provided in this year's estimates for the purchase of Mr. Donohoe's interest, so that they did not need the sanction of the Local Government Board. He seconded Mr. O'Hara's motion.

Alderman Quaid opposed the motion, because he thought that Mr. Donohoe had no legal rights to sell. The proposal to buy had emanated from Mr. Donohoe, and not from the Corporation.

Mr. Moran moved that the subject be referred to the Markets Committee, as it was irregular to bring a matter like this before the Council

Mr. P. T. Daly seconded Mr. Moran's amend-Mr. P. T. Daly seconded Mr. Moran's amendment. He said that if the regulations of the Food Controller had provided for the cheapening of potatoes the longer they were held, instead of the other way, he believed there would have been no dearth of the food of the people in Dublin and other places. He knew that 1,000 tons of potatoes were exported from Belfast last Friday night, and he was told that there was hardly a night in the week that large quantities were not exported. The Corporation were entitled to tolls upon potatoes sold in Dublin, and if those tolls were not collected somebody was lax.

somebody was lax.

Mr. O'Hara agreed to the amendment, and it was passed, it being understood that the Law Agent should furnish a report to the Committee. SUNDAY EVENING CINEMAS. Very Rev. Father Paul, O.S.F.C.; Rev. Father Fottrell, S.J.; Mr. T. J. Deering, and others—

Fottrell, S.J.; Mr. T. J. Deering, and others—waited on the Council to urge that the motion of Alderman Farrell that picture houses be opened at 8 o'clock, on condition that no performance whatever start till 8.30 on Sunday evenings be not adopted.

Mossignor Dunne said that the Committee which the deputation represented felt that this proposed change in the hour of opening the cinemas would interfere with the Church services, which were fixed for 8 o'clock. The Archbishop (Dr. Walsh) had, in his Lenten pastoral, drawn attention to the growing tendency

HOUSING OF THE WORKING CLASSES
The Town Clerk read a letter signed by the two Archbishops of Dublin, Six Edward Carson, and other prominent citizens, asking the Lord Mayor to convene a representative conference to consider the question of the housing of the working classes in Dublin.

The Lord Mayor explained that it was not with the object of interfering with the rights of the Corporation, but to get together a body of men who would help the Corporation to solve the kind offer, and he moved that the request be entered on the minutes, and delegates appointed.

This suggestion was agreed to.

COUNT PLUNKETT'S CIRCULAR.
Alderman Thomas Kelly asked if a circular had been received from Count Plunkett, and if see why it was not on the agenda.

The Lord Mayor said he was pleased and not pleased that the question had been raised. Such a letter was received, and the Town Clerk old him of its reception, but he (the Lord Mayor) without consulting anyone told the Town Clerk not to put it on the agenda. However, the country of the country. Alderman Kelly said he quite appreciated the Lord bayor's reasons, but there were people who thought his lordship was wrong. capital expenditure was comparatively triffing Government bore a share of its cost. Now when capital expenditure in Ireland cost about £120,000 a year in interest, they found themselves deprived of the full grant-in-aid which Parliament formerly granted. When the State cast upon the ratepayers the cost of erecting huge additional buildings, in equity they should have divided the burden. Parliament never repulsive to the shoulders of the ratepayers. It is the end of martial law in Ireland would not be an alternative policy, he did not know what would be. Did Mr. Delany suggest they were under the same conditions, with martial law in evidence, as if they were a free part of a free Empire? The resolution quoted the words of the resolution should resign and leave the institution to the Government committee, and also that, if the Treasury in the British House of Commons sending its "fraternal greetings" to the Tasr, and cry long might be reign. (Laughter.) Having regard to the state they were in Ireland, to send the resolution grant, which had been 4s., was now but 3s. 6d., at when it ought to be double what it was. As to the repayment of joans, the Jum involved was only £17,500, and there was precedent for suspension of payment.

Alderman Farrell seconded the motion. He maintained that it was the duty of the State to care for and maintain lunatics and imbeciles. The capitation grant should certainly be increased. Managers of industrial schools had told him that they would be obliged to close their institutions if the grants were not increased.

Alderman Dinnage supported the motion, and added that if the relief sought were not given

A PACIFIST PUGILIST.

A relatively small number of pacifists have reached the capital with the intention of personally importuning the members of the two Houses against war. It embodies all the administration measures on such subjects which passed the Senate in last Congress.

After the Speaker's election the new members were sworn in, and balloting was begun for the election of minor officers.

At first it was thought that the organisation of the House could be completed quickly, and that everything might be ready for Congress to hear the President soon after three. The Republicans, however, suddenly interposed obstacles, demanding separate roll calls for each office, and it appeared that the work of completing the organisation might run on until late in the afternoon. Mr. MACPHERSON replied that under this bill the old distinction between attested and non-attested men would no longer exist. The attested man would have just the same rights, as far as the tribunals under the Military Service Acts were concerned, as any other man. They both had a right to appeal.

Mr. NIELD said that he was glad to hear that announcement, but he would like to see it put on the Statute, because some of the tribunals and military representatives might not appreciate it otherwise.

In the course of further discussion, Sir F. E. SMITH agreed to accept, on the Report stage, words stating that the Military Service Acts, including the rights of appeal, shall apply to the men to be called up under the present bill

RANK OF RECALLED OFFICERS,
Sir MAURICE LEVY moved an amendment to the effect that all officers and non-commissioned officers, recalled to the Army under this bill, should be restored to their former rank.

Mr. MACPHERSON opposed the amendment, contending that the restoration must be left to the discretion of the Army Council. At the beginning of the war a number of young men got commissions who did not deserve them, as was found out later after testing in France. The view of the authorities in France was that the men under them were endangered by their being allowed to remain is n their positions. In any case where the Army Council thought that a man was fit to go back to his old position he worth while to force officers who were bona fide invalided out of the Army after meritorious service to serve in the ranks, as the number of such men was only small, and it would be most unfair to place these men in the same category as those officers who had shown that they were unfit to hold commissions.

Mr. MACPHERSON said that there was no such intention. Undoubtedly many officers relinquished their commissions on account of ill-health, and that was correctly described in the Gazette.

The amendment was withdrawn.

Mr. MACPHERSON, replying to Sir Charles Hobbouse, said that this was a purely war measure, and it would automatically cease to operate at the same time as the Military Service Acts, on the termination of the wag.

Mr. PETO raised again the question of the position of men engaged in agriculture. He said that he was not satisfied with the proposal of the Government that exemption should be given to agricultural labourers who were certified by the Board of Agriculture to be engaged in agricultural work on the 21st March. He moved to insert words which would give exemption to all men employed in agriculture.

Sir OWEN PHILIPS seconded the amendment.

This was not the kind of bill which the Government would have introduced, had it not been for the military situation. He would agree to the postponement of the Report stage until tomorrow, on the understanding that that stage should be completed and the bill read a third time before dinner. (Hear, hear.) Court Judge Doyle referred in feeling terms to the death in action of Captain Ivan Garvey, the eldest son of Mr. John Garvey, Crown Solicitor of Mayo. He paid a tribute to the worth of the deceased officer, and mentioned that Captain Garvey was killed while leading a raid on the enemy's trenches, and his gallant conduct had been recognised by the award of the Military Cross, which was, in the words of General Hickey, "as well and as hardly won by him as any Cross which the Division has gained."

AN IRISH SETTLEMENT.

AN IRISH SETTLEMENT.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE IRISH TIMES.

Sir.—Writing as a Home Ruler by personal activity and inherited associations, I would point to the fine opportunity presented—to Southern and Western Unionists especially—of making a thorough overhauling and "tightening up the serews" of local administration, which affects their daily lives at many points, a term in the general settlement. The time is long past when a Home Ruler should almost fear to admit the faintest falling short of absolute perfection in his fellow-Home Rulers lest it should feed the argument of "an inferior race, incapable of goverance." The faults and shortcomings before my mind are such as no community need be ashamed of. Anyone seeking to found an "inferior race" argument upon them should peruse the account of the "Barchester election" in Anthony's Trollope's "Doctor Thorne" (a fair presentation of how things were often done in the England of some sixty years ago, more accessible to the average person than reports of actual election petitions, etc.). Legislation and public opinion have worked much change since then. The present crisis affords opportunity of effecting needed improvements that, in the special circumstances of an Irish Parliament starting on its career, may not be practicable for seven to ten years (or more) to come.

The substantial improvements which some comparatively simple legislative changes can effect would, I know, be cordially welcomed by all the more thoughtful Home Rule members of the local boards which would be affected. Some others, not so thoughtful, might dissent, but such dissent, with no solid reason for it, would count for nought against the force of right and reason in favour of the improvement, plus—on this I lay stress—the driving-force of Southern and Western Unionists demanding such improvement as part of "the esttlement." Also the latter might very reasonably make as part of their demand an opportunity (due to their leisure for unpaid public business, and many other circumstances) for an ample

SIR,—In your leader of last Saturday you have laid your hand upon a vital spot in the body of a new Ireland. You state that Southern Unionists have been told that "an early settlement will be a potent instrument for the winning of the war. That argument has very great weight with them, for there is nardly a Southern Unionist family which has not given a son or brother to the winning of the war."

1904. But these facilities are no longer adequate for the requirements of the port.

PORT BOARD'S FAILURE.

As far back as the year 1867, said Sir John, the need of additional graving dock accommodation was under discussion, and Dr. Stoney, in his evidence in support of the Port Bill of 1879, included in his estimates the money for the construction of a second graving dock. Probably on account of the collapse of the ship-building industry in Dublin this dock was not proceeded with, but when promoting the Port Bill of 1902, immediately after the revival of shipbuilding in Dublin, powers were obtained to expend a sum of £209,000 on the construction of a new graving dock. The Port Board's failure to carry out their financial programme as submitted to Parliament to increase their revenue has prevented any progress being made in this direction. The fact that, with comparatively small alterations, works constructed more than half a century ago have met the needs of the port up to a comparatively recent date prove the foresight and broad outlook of the distinguished citizens who guided the affairs of the port as members of "The Corporation for Preserving and Improving the Port of Dublin," familiarly known as "The Ballast Board."

The following were elected members of the institution:—Thomas J. Byrne, 1 James's street, Dublin; Henry Powell, Town Hall, Blackrock; Hugh Hackett, County Surveyor's offices, Omagh; James V. What was said at the great Queen's Hall Indignation Meetings, March 22nd, before 4,000 people-crowds turned away.

The suffering and privation will fall chiefly on those least able to bear it. If we had bravely faced the issue two years ago or even a year ago, we could have avoided the suffering and privation to a great extent.

It is not too late even now, but it is too late for half measures. We have been told by the Prime Minister that the half-measure proposed by the Government will set free 600,000 tons of shipping space in twelve months. We demand that the remaining 400,000 tons shall be used for feeding the people.

It would be a tragic irony if the words "Too Late" should form Mr. Lloyd George's own political epitaph.

SIR ALFRED BOOTH, Bart., Chairman of the Cunard Steamship Company, and one of England's greatest Authorities upon Shipping and Tonnage.

THE Government we are told are afraid of the Working Man. If a sentry were THE Government we are told are afraid of the Working Man. If a sentry were placed in guard of food out at the front, and if he were afraid, and someone came and stole that food, what would happen to him? He would be shot. Those who are now in charge of the food of the people, if they are afraid of the working man or any other man, should be shot, or get out and make room for others. I advise them to look to Russia—which a fortnight ago was sober, but starved and enslaved—to Russia which is still sober, but fed and free, and to learn the fate of Governments which, when Empire is at stake, fools with the food of the people.

MR. PITT "-said a member of the House of Commons, when it was proposed to vote him a public manument. First NR. PITT—said a member of the House of Commons, when it was proposed to vote him a public monument—"needs no monument. Eight hundred millions of irredeemable debt are his everlasting monument!" If our present rulers do not take care history will record that 10,000,000 barrels of beer, manufactured in a year of famine from the food of the people, are their everlasting monument.

Mr. ST. LOE STRACHEY, Editor of the Spectator'

WHAT sort of treachery is it that sees a nation's food destroyed and asks the whole nation to eat a little less to oblige the food destroyers?... A man I know feeds 40,000 working people every day, and not very long ago ordered sugar for them. After a little while he sent to the docks to receive a delivery order. They sent back a letter from the Port of London Authority—

"Delivery of this sugar stopped by Food Controller, unless for Brewers." Mr. ARTHUR MEE.

"PUSH AND GO"

is one of these apt and siriking phrases which are so common in these modern days. The meaning of the saying in question is, of course, well understood. When it is applied to a person it is equivalent to affirming that he is a man of abounding energy and activity. "Push and Go" is a 'quality' which is usually regarded as a requisible to success. Although "Push and Go" may be regarded as a temperamental characteristic, yet at the same time the possession of this 'quality' indicates a condition of considerable physical vitality. The value therefore of maintaining the general health at a high standard will be at once apparent. To achieve this, attention must be directed to the digestion. This is the basis of normal health and vigous. Any derangement here must be promptly dealt with. One of the best medicines for relieving and curing disorders of the digestion right. This remedy is known all over the world for its powers of promoting health along these lines. Everyone desirous of maintaining the "Push and Go" standard of vitality will do well to take
